Falling in Love With Fall!

Embracing the autumn season was easy (and fun!) at our Fall Festival event. Our front porch was the perfect setting on a lovely and warm fall day. Harvest decorations, live music, hot apple cider, and snacks were just a few of the things enjoyed by residents and guests. The petting zoo was also a hit, and families were able to capture the memories by snapping a picture at our photo booth!

Donald Lipscomb (center) was thrilled to spend time with his brother, John, and sister-in-law, Holli.

It was a great day for our furry friends to stop by.

Kyle Edgell, a self-proclaimed "artist and humor professional," made another visit to our front porch to create some one-of-a-kind drawings of our residents. Her fast, lighthearted sketches always reflect the unique essence of each subject. Best of all? Residents were able to keep their quirky portraits to hang in their apartment or show off to friends.

Fun in the Sun(flowers)

A recent trip to Beaver Dam Farm's Sunflower Festival in Buchanan did not disappoint! This gorgeous farm is home to over 20 acres of blackoil sunflowers, along with variety of animals and breathtaking views. We look forward to visiting again next September.

Photographic Memory

An outing to the O. Winston Link Museum – located just minutes away in downtown Roanoke – was just the ticket for our adventurous group. Residents took a leisurely tour of the museum which is dedicated to the works of its namesake photographer, whose main subject matter included the trains and surroundings of the Norfolk & Western Railway.

The trip was very special to two from our group. Ann Williams was one of the subjects in a swimming pool photo with a train in the background. Ann was only 17 when the image was taken and she was given a silver dollar by Link for her time.

There was also a connection for Bill Arnold. He and his late wife, Ellen, were personal friends of Link and were sponsors of the Radford Gallery, as well as longtime volunteers.

We Appreciate You!

The Our Lady of the Valley management team was privileged to celebrate our amazing staff during our recent employee appreciation week. From tie-dye day to a catered lunch, we enjoyed fun and fellowship to say “thank you” to our valued team members who improve the lives of seniors each and every day.

Kudos to you all!
